

When referring to “sex”, I am a human sexuality minor, and all the aspects of sex and relationships are important. Sexual construction in society is very important to understand and possibly open up.

Sexuality should also be added.

Sexuality (which I view as crucially different from Sex or Gender)

Relationships/Sexuality

Families are falling apart. That’s my opinion. And, I think children are going to suffer. Of course this is a very sensitive issue since most college students come from broken homes.

Anyway, mentioning family structures of different cultures in the class would liven things up. Right now, climate, religion, technology, economics and government don’t spur much self reflection, but learning about different family structures would be unique, and I think leave a greater impact on students and thus, we would retain our awareness of the world for a longer period of time.
